PRESENTATIONS:

I. HOW TO EXPRESS YOUR EMOTIONS

Expressing feelings allows one to dialogue through a circumstance producing the feelings. All persons involved in the situation can discover the most appropriate manner to address it. If left alone, negative feelings will become worse, the problem remains or gets worse, and the relationship suffers negatively.

Participants will be equipped with the proper manner in which to express their emotions.

Participants will be exposed to the common mistakes made when sharing emotions.

Participants will be given stem sentence starters to express emotions.

Participants will learn how to take an emotional survey during all situations.

Participants will be instructed on the proper and effective manner/time to share their emotions with guardians in various states.

NOTE: All presentations come with handouts, presentation memorabilia, and parent event presentations (as requested).
